

During the Neolithic period newly settled communities began domesticating animals.

- How did the domestication of animals contribute to the development of settled, agricultural villages?

Be sure to provide examples and details in your answer.